

Collaboration in your Community

How to make it work Workshop by Kerry Graham

November - Christchurch | Wellington | Hastings | Auckland

Collaboration takes Effort!

The evidence is clear that complex social problems take a collaborative approach to resolve. Across New Zealand communities struggle with overcoming persistent social issues and frustrations that hold them back.

We have designed this workshop to help communities who wish to tackle and resolve complex social problems using the Collective Impact model and provide them with the tools and framework to start working together.

The Collective Impact framework is a structured and disciplined way to make collaboration work across government, non-profits, community members, business and philanthropists.

Come to this workshop to learn how to work with others for a common good, how to galvanise broad based community support and how to make progress when nothing else seems to be making a difference.

“Come to this workshop
if you work with others
for a common good”

Kerry Graham

Kerry has worked in social change for over 20 years and has held executive roles within national non-profit organisations as well as advising governments on social policy. She holds qualifications in public policy, law, social work and community management.

Kerry is an Associate and Lecturer on Collaborative Practice with University of New South Wales and Convenor of the Australian Community of Practice on Collaboration.

DATES 2015

Christchurch: 2 November
Wellington: 3 November
Hastings: 4 November
Auckland: 6 November

All workshops
9.00am - 4.30pm

PRICE

$256.50 excl GST

Discounts apply on additional delegates from the same organisation.

For details see the website.

For more information on this event, please go to collaborationincommunity.grow.co.nz

*Details subject to change.
Please see the website
for latest information*